ness and geniality have drawn around him many friends, and his services as Governor of the State warmed many hearts with patriotic regard for him when he departed from the Executive chair. The son of Ezra Cornell, founder of Cornell University, at Ithaca, he possesses many of the philanthropic qualities of his father.

Though ex-Governor Cornell has remained in private life for many years, he has still retained a strong hold upon the friendships of those who knew him in his more active career. Few public men have retired from elective positions with the respect which followed him when he gave way to his successor. Brief notices were issued by him a few days ago to the effect that he was to depart for Europe to-day on the Umbria, and desired to meet some of his friends at a farewell dinner last night at the Hotel Bristol. His main purpose in going abroad is to further the interests of a company with which he is identified. But there was another motive in the note of invitation which was carefully concealed. The persons to whom invitations were hurriedly sent were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sage, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Eckert, Colonel A. D. Shaw, General Louis Fitz-Eckert, Colonel A. D. Shaw, General Louis Fitzgerald, General Daniel Butterfield, Chaumcey M. Depew, William Rhinelander Stewart, Charles Emory Smith, Horace Russell, Colonel James M. Varnum, a former member of the Governor's staff, Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus Halsey, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Darifng, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ezra Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Weston, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Cochrane, Seth Low, Colonel and Mrs. William F. Cochrane, Seth Low, Colonel and Mrs. Henry M. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Colgate, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Wood, President Schurmann, of Cornell University, Ranklin C. Cornell, C. W. Tyson, General and Mrs. Frederick R. Haisey, Mr. and Mrs. J. Collin Forbes, Henry H. Weibert, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bright, General Langdon, General and Mrs. Robert S. Oliver, Judge Amassa J. Parker, Colonel Mann, of Troy; General and Mrs. Alfred C. Barnes, of Brooklyn; General and Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, Edwin Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, Edwin Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Colonel R. C. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Eratus Corning, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ballou, William L. Bostwick and a few others.

The dinner had not far advanced when Governor Cornell arnounced that the party would probably at the close, have an opportunity of taking part in a wedding ceremony. One of the lades present was Esther Elizabeth, daughter of the late George Covert, of Ithaca, and she was destined to become the wife of Governor Cornell shortly after 8 o'clock. It was a surprise party of a good, old-fashloned sort. All present were eager to offer their congratulations to the happy couple.

Dr. Egbert Guernsey's home is at No. 528 Mth-ave., only a block and a half from the lotel Bristol, and when the dinner was ended aparty present walked up the avenue, and en-Hotel Bristol, and when the dinner was ended the party present walked up the avenue, and entering the doctor's parlor found the Rev. Dr. J. W. Brown, of St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church, awaiting their arrival. Governor Cornell and his bride advanced; a brief ceremony followed and then all joined in warm congratulations to both. A disarrangement of plans will prevent Governor Cornell from sailing today, as he had intended to do, and he will probably go by a steamer some time next week.

Governor Cornell's services to the State are so well remembered and his career of usefulness has been so conspicuous that reference to them is hardly necessary. As the Governor of the Empire State his approval of beneficent laws and his veto of measures which were deemed by him injurious to the interests of the Commonwealth received general commendation. He will always be remembered in the history of the State as one of its most courageous Governors. He was especially successful in the management of the finances of the State, and his administration was conspicuous as the most economical within the last quarter of a century. It showed a lower tax rate accompanied by proportionately lower expenditures than appeared in the record of any of his predecessors or any of his successors.

OXFORD WILL WELCOME YALE.

THE MEN OF THE ENGLISH UNIVERSITY EAGER TO MEET THE AMERICANS-A YALE MASS-MEETING CALLED.

New-Haven, June 8.—McLane Van Ingen. the Yale track athlete, who has been in England arranging for a meet between Yale and Oxford for an inter-mational championship, arrived in this city to-night and held a formal consultation with the Yale ath and held a formal consultation with the Yale athletic captains relative to the arrangements for the proposed tournament. He reported that the greatest enthusiasm was manifested in England over the prospect of Yale's visit, and that Oxford had offered to undertake the business management of the affair, provided that Yale would consent to come over. He said that it would prove a social as well as an athletic triumph for an American team to go to Oxford, and added that Oxford had promised to exist the list of contests if Yale would cross the ocean. The Yale managers declared the proposition feasible, and decided to cal a mass-meeting of the university, to take place next Monday evening, at 8 ociock, when final action will be taken.

The Coddingtons are relatives of Mrs. James W. Fellows, formerly Mrs. Clifford Coddinaton, against whom charges of inebriety and undiness to manage her estate have recently been aired in court. Clifford C. Goodwin and his mother were the relatives whom Mrs. Coddinaton-Fellows accused of kidnapping her daughter Gladys.

POLITICAL ODDS AND ENDS.

WHY MONTANA IS REPUBLICAN.

Washington, June 8 (Special) .- "A friend of min out in Montana," said Henry C. Kingsley, of that State, yesterday, "purchased less than two years ago a herd of 25,000 sheep, for which he paid $3 per head. He became involved financially a few weeks slace, and was forced to seh his flocks, incurring great loss, the best of his sheep bringing only $1.52 each, and the common ones $5 cents. The fear of free wool has hurt that great industry, and if enacted into a law the sheep business will be destroyed in Montana. Another of our most promising sources of wealth, the raising of barley, is threatened by the proposed Tariff bill. The quality of barley raised in Montana is so far superfor to that produced elsewhere in the country that we can grow it at a good profit, despite the difference in cost of transportation. Some Brooklyn gentlemen not long ago bought 50,000 acres in my neighborhood, built irrigating canals, malthouses and elevators,
for the purpose of producing barley on a large scale,
if it is put on the free list or made practically free,
there is no way to compete with the Canadian crop, and the men from Brooklyn will have made a sorry investment. Lead is another of our important products which are endangered. Our miners set $3 a day, against 60 cents paid to the miners of Mexico, and once the lead ore of that Republic is allowed across the Rio Grande duty free, production in Montana is at an end. Is it a matter of wonder, in view of all these things, that the State should declare itself for the Republican party?" weeks since, and was forced to sell his flocks, in-

HARVARD'S PRESIDENT HONORED.

Cambridge, Mass., June 8, (Special).-President Ellot received to-day a glowing tribute to his career as head of Harvard University in the form of the

as head of Harvard University in the form of the public announcement of the following address, voted by the Faculty of Arts and Sciences:

The Faculty of Arts and Sciences:

The Faculty of Arts and Sciences:

The Faculty of Arts and Sciences desire to commemorate the completion of the twenty-fifth year of President Eliots administration by placing this minute on their records:

President Eliot entered on his office on the nine-teenth day of May, 1859. It appears from the records of the college faculty that he took his seat as its presiding officer at a meeting held on the 7th day of June. The progress which since that time has taken place in the departments of the university under the charge of this faculty, as well as in its other schools, is far greater than has been made in any like period since the foundation of Harvard College. That progress has been not merely a growth in members, wealth and intellectual resources, not in members, wealth and intellectual resources, not merely an advance along old and conspicuous these but a transformation of nature and spirit, a new birth of university life. President Eliot found here, at his accession, many sarvivors of a group of men at his accession, many sarvivors of a group of men

President Eliot found here, at his accession, many servivors of a group of their of distinguished talents and learning, who gave wide fame to the institution, and had striven in its faculty for a generation to lift it to the higher and freer plane of activity on which alone true scholarship can be formed. But its spite of all that had been accomplished at that time, end of all that was due to the well-won reputation of individual professors—to whom the faculty still look back with veneration and pride—it is the period of the present administration that will be remembered hereafter as the epoch in which the university was first fair; as the epoch in which the university was first fair; as the epoch in which the university was first fair; as the epoch in which the university was first fair; while to take its place among the great seats of kigning of the world, and to adopt as its foremost purpose, not simply the regulation of more of less university of the world, and to adopt as its foremost purpose, not simply the regulation of more of less undestined to devote their whole future to schooling, but the nurture, discipline and inspiration of men destined to devote their whole future to schooling science, philosophy, criticism, or art, and of students agring serious foundations of lifelong cuture—tae leaders in the coming generation in the search for new knowledge, the establishment of new standards.

The foundation of new intellectual forms.

The foundation of the progress thus made has been in the development of the elective system. That system, feebly inaugurated more than two generations ago, and in 189 still confined within strictly academic limits, and permitting little real strictly academic limits, and permitting little real modern inquiry, to promote he ean department, and at less to office the search without regard to traditional rules, the methods of study and teaching found best for t

CLOSING DAYS AT WEST POINT.

CADETS PRACTISE WITH THE RAPID-FIRE GUNS AND PASS IN REVIEW BEFORE THE SECRETARY OF WAR.

West Point, N. Y., June 8 (Special).-The programme for to-day's exercises was changed early this morning. The outdoor field sports, which were scheduled for 9 o'clock, will be held to-morrow at the same hour. The field artillery drill gave place to an exhibition of rapid-fire guns, and the corps of cadets were reviewed by the Secretary of War. The Secretary was astir early this morning and inspected every building on the post. At noon he went to the cadets' dining-room, and in company with Colonel John M. Wilson, Superintendent of Public Buildings tenant Peter S. Traub drove to the target range north of the seacoast battery, for the purpose of seeing the Gatling and other guns proved. machine and rapid-fire guns were under the di-rection of Captain L. L. Bruff. Captain Bruff was assisted by Lieutenant Babbitt. The first gun fired was a ten-barrel Gatling, firing 500 shots a minute. Colonel Lamont stood near the guns until the large ones began to fire, when he retired to the shade of ones began to fire, when he retired to the shade of the instrument house, where the noise was not so great. The Gatling gun was tried with different feeds, and made to fire from 600 to 2,000 rounds a minute. A double-barrel Gardner gun was next tried, which fired 500 shots a minute. All these guns were fired over the water to show the fall of the bullets. The next gun was a Hotchkiss rapidfire, which sends off fifty shots a minute. The Nordenfelt rapid-lire gun and the Hotchkiss revolving cannon were tried with a rate of fifty shots a minute.

Secretary Lamont seemed pleased with the work.
When the firing was ended he returned to the hotel and rested until the cadets marched out for

At 7:25 p. m. the Secretary of War left the Post, It was thought that he would remain to distribute the diplomas, but that pleasing task has been left, it is said, to Adjutant-General Ruggles. The examinations are all finished, and the cadets patiently await their fate.

At 3 o'clock this evening a heavy artiliery drill diege mortars) and a military pyrotechnic display were given before the Board of Visitors.

A BLACK EYE FOR WILDCAT BANKS.

ONE CREDITABLE THING TO DATE. From The Rochester Post-Express.

The victors bull repealing a tax on the issues of tarte banks was defeated in the House of Rep-esentatives yesterlay. The House has done at least ne creditable thing and should have the credit.

From The Buffalo Commercial.

From The Euffalo Commercial.

The country is to be congratulated on the burial of this question for the present session at least. What is needed in these trying times beyond anything else is the cassistion of Governmental interference, in an experimental way, with the financial trial fariff conditions on which the industrial and commercial prosperity of the country largely rests. ANOTHER CHICAGO PLANK REJECTED.

From The Niagara Falls Gazette. Another plank of the Chicago platform has been rejected by Congress, as yesterday the bill to repeal the tax upon State banks was defeated.

FEELINGS TOO DEEP FOR UTTERANCE. From The Rochester Union and Advertiser (Dem.). More than half the Democratic vote of the House repudlated the pledge of the Democratic platform. Comment would be superfluous.

GOING BACK ON THEIR PLEDGES.

Of the defeat of the platform pledge the leas said the better. There is no question of doubt or uncer-tainty as to what it meant, and even its opponents could find no further justification of the desertion of the platform than the deciaration that they "do not consider themselves bound by the 'ipse dixit' of a convention." From The Atlanta Constitution (Dem.).

WILDCAT MOVEMENT OVERESTIMATED. From The Indianapolis Journal.

These votes show that the strength of the State bank movement has been overestimated. ONE THING IT DID NOT DAKE DO. From The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The present Congress is the worst the country has ever had, but it did not dare repeal the tax on issues of notes by State banks. The defeat of the bill yesterlay by the House was brought about by enough Democratis joining the Republicans to give a majority of sixty-eight against the measure.

quiry. It had before it this morning H. L. Terrell, of Cleveland, Ohio, a member of the Trust, whose name has been mentioned prominently in connection with committee from the alleged agreement of the Trust to contribute to the Democratic campaign fund to the reported conferences in Washington over alleged demands of the Trust that its favors is the party should be recognized by substantial benefits to be conferred through the sugar schedule. Another matter inquired into by the committee was of a more personal character to Mr. Terrell. It concerned the manufacturer, who told the committee that while occupying a room in the Arlington Hotel in Washing next to Mr. Terrell's he overheard a conversation in Mr. Terrell's room about the sugar schedule which gave the impression that Senators were present, and that a "deal" was being made looking to an arrangement by which the Trust would be cared for or the Tariff bill defeated.

Mr. Terrell admisted that there had been conferchoes at the Ariington Hotel in his rooms, at which Senators Brice and Smith and Mr. Havemeyer and himself were present, but he was unable to fix any neeting which disturbed the siumbers of Mr. Gaston. Mr. Terrell said, however, that at no time did the occurrences related in "The Press" article take

When asked what interest he had in the Trust, and how he came to be in Washington at time, Mr. Terrell said that he liked Washington and usually spent his winters here. Mr. Havemeyer, the president of the Sugar Trust, was, he said, an old riend of his, and had asked him to let him know if he discovered anything during his stay here of interest to nim. When Mr. Havemeyer came here he occupied Terrell's rooms, and so it happened that this meeting occurred. While it was in progress the general tariff situation was discussed between the two Senators and Mr. Havemeyer, Mr. Terrell taking little part in it. Mr. Terrell said that sugar was mentioned. Mr. Havemeyer having an interest in legislation relating to that article as a matter of course. He denied, though, that any such conversation as was related by Mr. Edwards ever took place, or that anything which could be construed as such occurred.

Reference was also made to a meeting between

So far as he then the chairman and the probability of the chairman and the street of the firm, and no one employed by it, had an advance copy of these amendments. The statement of "The Frees" correspondent that he brokers to whom Senator Brice had been accurated to commit his speculative interests have sen large purchasers of sugar was read to Mr. Thapman, and he was asked if that statement was correct. The witness asked the courtest of the committee for a postponement of the examination upon these points until he could consult with oursel. He desired to ascertain to what extent as should go in disclosing any of the business of its firm before the committee.

Mr. Chapman—I do not understand the periode tirice.

The Chairman—Well, I will ask you, then, so far as he is concerned, whether during the pendency of the present tariff bill, Senator Brice has, through your firm or to your knowledge, speculated in what are known as sugar stocks?

Mr. Chapman—As I am going to consult my counsel, I would prefer to answer no question relating to my husiness until I have done so.

Finally the witness added, acting upon a suggestive inquiry from the chairman, that his declination to answer was because he wished to know what his personal rights were in the matter.

The certification by Vice-President Stevenson to the District-Attorney of the refusal of the newspaper men, Shriver and Edwards, to answer certain questions before the Senate Investigating Committee was given to the Grand Jury to-day. Senator Allen, of Nebraska, was the only witness called. At the conclusion of his testimony an adjournment was taken until Monday. It is not probable that an indictment will be made out before the end of next week. In fact, well-informed officials express doubt whether any indictment will ever be found, and hint that none was ever intended to be found.

The speaker began by saying read by Miss Mary Shaw, entitled "A Field for Volce-Culture." The speaker began by saying: "The subject is too broad and vast to be dealt with effectively in one hour's time. From the great mans of the people, whose first thoughts and efforts must be spent in getting food and clothing, we have no right to expect any great interest in the cultivation of the volce; but what words of condemnation can be strong enough against those professions that employ the volce as their chief tool, and yet treat it with indifference and neglect? The volce tells to the listener more than the speaker dreams, more than the speaker often would care to have known. The volce tells of a fine or coarse grained nature; of a well-trained mind, stored with pure thoughts and bright fancies, or of one tainted with ignorance and low companionship. "Especially does it tell of the shallowness or depth of morality. The effect of a voice has often produced great results. The irritation and antagonism produced by a lawyer's voice may account for some of the strange verilets that are rendered. Very likely murder that was swift and sure seems less of a crime than the six weeks' long drawn out torture of the counsel's voice. Surely, we would be shocked at the average voice had we not been trained from childhood to the bizarre and false in speech and tone. It is interesting to speculate on how mighty and far-reaching might be the influence of public workers if to magnetism and sincerity were joined the grace, beauty and strength of speech."

This act abolished the franchise given to the West Virginia corporation, which has been sprinkling the streets of this city during the last year, and allowed householders to select their own sprinkler. Mr. Byers served notice on Commissioner Paly year terday that if on Monday next he still refused to issue the permit, the Supreme Court would be asked to issue a mandamus compelling its issuance.

NOTES OF THE STAGE.

It is not always safe to predict what will happen at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, but the announcement is made that arrangements have been com-pleted between the Rosenfeld Brothers and J. C. Duff, whereby a senson of comic opera will begin on Thursday evening with a revival of Glibert and Sullivan's "The Mikado."

Mrs. Minnie Seligman-Cutting will give her last performance of "Lady Gladys" at the Madison Square Theatre to-night. The statement made a few days ago and afterward denied that Mrs. Cut-ting would play under Mr. Hoyt's management next reason had some foundation. The subject was discussed, but no details were arranged, and no final arrangement was made.

"The Amazons" will end its long and presperous the Amazons with the last long and prosperous bel Irving played the part of Lady Noeline last night, and will do so this afternoon and evening, as Miss Cayvan is to sail for Europe to-day.
